

March 1, 1948

Mrs. Arthur Stover
Reef Point, Bar Harbor, Maine.

Dear Mrs. Stover:

Another book has come from Blackwells in London, ordered by Mrs. Farrand for the Dumbarton Oaks Garden Library. It arrived today - Roses for English Gardens by Gertrude Jekyll and Edward Mawley. This information for your records.

I have kept separate the books recently purchased by Mrs. Farrand, thinking Mrs. Bliss would like to see them by themselves, but believe it or not, she has never put foot in my office since her return from Europe in December. The talk of garden goes on all around me but I seem not to be a part of it and never hear anything until everyone else has digested whatever information there is.

I do hope you are keeping well now that Spring is just around the corner, I'm sure you will be glad.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,